Completion date	01.03.2021-31.12.2023
Project supervisor	Kulzat Sadirova, Doctor of Philology, associate Professor
Report	In this project 1) Names are mythologically described as a system of video symbols with complex meanings 2) Problems of onomastic vocabulary in Kazakh mythology are analyzed in connection with the materials of other Turkic languages. 3) In accordance with the directions of “sacred toponymy” (sacred geography) of Kazakhstan, the national code is reflected in the names of holy people and place names 4) The cult of hydronyms (water) in the traditional worldview of the Turks and the phenomenon of life: the female image of the spirit of water, the symbolism of rituals associated with water, the healing properties of water, the prohibitions associated with water are historically compared with the spiritual views of the Kazakhs. 5) The manifestation of the cult of oronyms (mountains, gorges, valleys, etc.) in the traditional worldview of the Turks is historically characterized by materials in the Kazakh language. 6) Manifestation of the cult of phytonyms (plants, trees) in the traditional worldview of the Turks: the mythological names formed in connection with the cult of trees and various plants in the territory of Kazakhstan are determined. The relevance of the project. In the onomastic discourse, the names preserve the historical origin and spatial movement of different ethnic groups and groups in the ethno-cultural and historical nature. Therefore, names are a historical, cultural, linguistic phenomenon that conveys ethnic information from ancient times. Preservation of ethnocultural character in the content of onomastics in the modern Kazakh language shows that cultural archetypes are ethno-symbols preserved in the linguistic image. It is important to define the system of names (names of names and place-names), formed in connection with the mythical consciousness of the Kazakh people. The idea of study is relevant in this regard.
